WELCOME NEW MEMBER: HEATHER YOUNG HIGHSMITH

Heather has just joined our congregation, and is transferring from St. Marks Episcopal Church in Little Rock, Arkansas. She grew up in Russellville, Arkansas, and attended Hendrix College. She also met her husband Cameron in Arkansas. Cameron is Director of Spiritual Care for Prayers of the People (POP) and a candidate for ordination as a teaching elder. Heather currently works as a Fellow in Pediatric Infectious Diseases. In her spare time, she likes to relax by cooking, reading and just hanging out.

Heather was invited to St. Philip by friends Liz Branch, Carlos Lopez, and Sally Johnson. She decided to join St. Philip due to our worship service, welcoming congregation, and our ministerial staff. She indicates interest in many facets of congregational life, including Youth Program, Worship, Missions, Welcoming and Membership, Fellowship and Caring, and Peacemaking and Social Justice. Please welcome Heather to our congregation.

For over 53 years, Houston Boychoir has been building men of character. As is one of the country's premiere boychoirs, it sets the level of excellence for artistic achievement and educational outcomes in children's performing ensembles. The boys perform extensively each season throughout the city, across the country and around the world, delighting audiences and building friendships. They will perform April 10 in the Sanctuary at 4:00 p.m. The three choirs will cover a wide variety of music spanning the centuries. From Mozart, to folk music to Harold Arlen, something for everyone. Houston Boychoir, "it is an experience you won't want to miss."

WE CHOOSE WELCOME!

Guided by three St. Philip sessions which have committed to the peacemaking program of the PCUSA and by our Session's resolution affirming St. Philip's commitment to "welcome the stranger," the Peacemaking & Social Justice Committee embarks on a "We Choose Welcome" emphasis. What does this mean? One concern is the plight of 11 million Syrians who have been displaced from their homes due to years of conflict and instability. Presbyterians have had a mission presence in Syria since the early 1800s. Honoring that heritage we today join with other congregations in the U.S. who hold the people of Syria and the Syrian refugees in their prayers. We Choose Welcome!

Submitted by the Peacemaking & Social Justice Committee

Dear Friends:

The wedding of Keatan King and Nate Carlin this past weekend in Austin was joyful and inspiring. University Presbyterian Church was the site for the ceremony. This is Keatan's home church and is a glorious setting for worship. As often happens when ministers marry, Keatan and Nate chose the "long form" service of Christian marriage. There were two congregational hymns, two anthems from the UPC choir, and a celebration of the Lord's Supper. The couple spoke their declarations of intent around the large baptismal font, linking the covenant of marriage to the promise of God proclaimed in baptism. The officiating ministers were John Alsup, emeritus professor of New Testament at Austin Seminary and Keatan's "godfather" (or as close to the term as is possible in the Presbyterian Church); and Robert Dykstra, professor of pastoral theology at Princeton Seminary, who is known to us at St. Philip as our 2015 Summer Lecturer and who preached at Nate's ordination service at St. Philip in August of 2013.

In his wedding sermon, Dr. Dykstra spoke about the role of the community in assisting a couple in their life together. The totality of the wedding vows, the commitment to one another in plenty and in want, in joy and in sorrow, in sickness and in health, requires a level of devotion that we fallible creatures are incapable of on our own. However, through God's grace and through the supportive love of family, friends, and sisters and brothers in faith we are strengthened to live into the vows we make when we marry. The marriage service itself includes an Affirmation of the Community, asking if all those witnessing the vows will do everything in their power to uphold the couple in their marriage. Those gathered Saturday answered the question with an enthusiastic "We will." I felt confident answering that question on behalf of the St. Philip community, trusting that we all will do what we can to support and strengthen Keatan and Nate in the vows they have made to one another.

It's not just in marriage that the community plays a significant role. It is that way for the whole of faith. It's hard to follow Jesus Christ alone. Rather, we need the support, the guidance, and the companionship of one another. Accordingly, when we baptize children, the whole congregation makes a promise of nurture and support. When we ordain and install elders and deacons, we lay on hands, signifying the Body of Christ that extends through the generations. At our service of healing and wholeness, we gather around those seeking healing in a way that represents the blessing that comes through sharing life together. These are just a few examples of how we bear witness to the value of our common life.

In the doctrine of the Trinity, we posit that God exists as "one God in three persons." In other words, God is fundamentally a "being in relationship;" and so community is at the core of who God is. As God's people, we are called into relationship with one another, and it is through our relationships that we grow into the fullness of who God would have us be. Being together for worship, for learning, for service, and for fellowship are crucial for developing and sustaining our faith. We need each other, and we have a responsibility to one another.

With thanksgiving for all the blessings of our life together, let us pray for Keatan and Nate as they begin their marriage; and let us also pray for one another as the community of St. Philip.

Faithfully yours,

The Lindsay family wishes to thank everyone who helped put together Margaret Lindsay's memorial service. We especially wish to thank John Wurster, Matthew Dirst and Jason Neuring for the meaningful worship service, Lorrie Castle for coordinating everything, and Mary Benson, Jenilee Simmons and the Presbyterian women for the elegant reception following the service. We know Margaret would have been very pleased with the Scottish touch. We also want to thank everyone at St. Philip for their thoughts and prayers during this difficult time.

Faith & Grief Ministries (FGM) is deeply grateful for the generous grant from the St. Philip Presbyterian Church Central Mission Endowment. The grant was awarded to promote awareness of "Comfort & Hope on the Journey of Grief," a weekend retreat, facilitated for a second year by FGM at the invitation of Presbyterian Mo-Ranch Assembly and to greatly reduce the registration fee so that finances would not be an obstacle to the healing process.

Five men and forty-two women participated in the weekend retreat. None of them wanted to be there. What they wanted was to enjoy life as it was before the death of their loved ones. One woman, grieving the death of her only son at 13 and her husband who died several months later, admitted that she had a quick exit plan in place because she feared being surrounded by persons who felt sorry for themselves. What she discovered was a room full of others with such courage, strength, and love.

Courage led participants, from ages 24-86, to travel from Ohio, Florida, and points across Texas to seek comfort in their sorrow. A widower reflected, there is comfort in looking around this room and realizing that I am not alone in my grief. And the person sitting next to him said, having my feelings validated takes away much of the fear of grief.

The weekend was filled with:

- hearing others tell their stories of grief
- sharing personal experiences
- learning spiritual disciplines that promote comfort
- enjoying the beauty of Mo in silence, laughter, and tears
- listening to passages of scripture from the Paschal triduum, Job, Ruth, II Samuel, and the Gospel of John

One participant commented, With each scripture story, our differences found common ground and compassion became a healing balm of strength. After hearing anew the story of Jesus weeping after the death of his friend, Lazarus, a participant, grieving the death of a friend of 50+ years, said people don't recognize the pain and loss that comes with the death of a best friend. Six participants found unexpected hope and a distillation of the stigma surrounding suicide loss survivors by sitting together at a table facilitated by a 10-year survivor.

Many participants did not know what to expect from the retreat because it was their first experience with the death of a sibling, spouse, parent, or child. Others hoped to: gain something powerful; find out I'm not going crazy; get relief from intense pain. Jenny shared:

I felt the heart of God speaking through all of you, and healed so much more than I even anticipated. Faith and Grief Ministries provides something that has been missing in our culture and churches for too long-- a safe place to be vulnerable in grief. We all have so many tools now: so many different ways to pray, so many scriptural references to guide us, so many warm memories from the stories and support.

All participants said, Yes! Absolutely! they would encourage others to attend next year's workshop, February 24-26, 2017.

MENTAL HEALTH SYMPOSIUM

Creating Communities of Grace and Hope

In every congregation there are people and families who struggle with mental health issues – some chronic, some more acute. In every case the community of faith is called upon to respond with compassion, understanding, and hope. At this symposium, experts in the area of mental health will present information on causes, treatment, research, and resources, how to reach beyond the stigma, and how to minister to people with mental health issues. The keynote speaker will be Elizabeth McIngvale-Cegelski, Ph.D., who is the founder of the Peace of Mind Foundation. Panelists include James Lomax, M.D., Matt Stanford, Ph.D., Sylvia Muzquiz-Drummond, M.D. and Rev. Dr. Peter Holmes.

All members and clergy of New Covenant Presbytery and any faith organization or church are invited to attend. This free symposium will be on Saturday, April 23 from 9:30 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church (5308 Buffalo Speedway, Houston, TX 77005). The Committee of Congregational Resources of the Presbytery of New Covenant is sponsoring this event and more information is available from Charlotte Kibler at 281-744-0171 orcharwk@juno.com

The event is free: we ask that you register at: www.pbyofnewcovenant.org

The following is an excerpt from a letter Paula Paust, Executive Director of The Women's Home, and Marcia Tapp, Director of Resource Development, wrote St. Philip.

"Just down the street, a woman's life is better because you cared. The encouragement and support you have demonstrated will make a difference..We are so grateful for your investment to our operation, which has been allocated to our WholeLifeR program. Your gift will help us reach out to our residents who are struggling to build a whole life, leaving behind crisis and chaos."

EASTER BOXES FOR THE WOMEN'S HOME

Many, many thanks for your over the top number of items for the boxes. Every year your overwhelming, generous support for this project is beautiful. Because of your gifts, we were able to deliver 55 full boxes, plus more than usual bags of loose items. The women are thrilled to get them and appreciate everything. Kindly, Janet Davis
